eifeler Coatings Technology Opens New Medical Coatings Facility

New dedicated medical facility means stellar instrumentation quality

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

St. Charles, IL – As an industry leader in PVD-coatings, eifeler Coatings Technology is pleased to announce the launch of the new orthopedic coatings facility in St. Charles, Illinois. The new medical facility caters to the strict quality standards of the medical orthopedic industry to provide best in class coated instruments.

According to Larry Williams, Director of Sales, Medical, “the dedicated medical facility is operated by a team of highly trained medical coating professionals who understand the importance of maintaining product integrity”. The facility continues eifeler Coatings’ commitment to the medical instrument industry by providing industry leading turnaround times in addition to optimizing overall performance, instrument life and appearance.

eifeler Coatings Technology has been devoted to effectively serving the medical industry for almost two decades, forming lasting partnerships and trusted relationships with major OEMs and contract manufacturers. The launch of the new medical facility, equipped with state of the art Arc Evaporation coating systems technology, and with the latest in innovative coating formulas, will add industry leading capabilities to ensure production of the highest quality medical instruments.
